FENWAY PARK CODE OF CONDUCT

Welcome to friendly Fenway Park, home of the Boston Red Sox. To preserve the family atmosphere and to ensure that your visit is safe, enjoyable, and memorable, please adhere to the following guidelines of behavior in the ballpark. • The following items are prohibited from entering the ballpark: beach balls or inflatable objects of any kind, alcoholic beverages, glass bottles, cans, or containers of any sort, and offensive articles or objects. No banners will be allowed into the ballpark to be hung or paraded. • Any person observed with offensive articles or using offensive language will be subject to immediate ejection from the ballpark. • Fans are permitted to keep foul balls hit into the stands as souvenirs. However, fans must not go onto the field or interfere in any way with a ball in play. Fans interfering with play or entering onto the field will be subject to immediate ejection, arrest, and prosecution. • All seating areas in Fenway Park are smoke-free. There are designated non-alcohol sections—Grandstand sections 32 and 33. These sections have been set aside and no alcoholic beverages and/or smoking will be allowed in these areas. Red Sox security will strictly enforce this prohibition. • It is illegal for individuals to offer tickets for resale to the public. Failure to adhere to this policy could result in arrest and criminal prosecution. • Laws prohibiting consumption of alcoholic beverages by minors, illegal drugs, and disorderly conduct of any kind, including intoxication, will be strictly enforced at Fenway Park. • The throwing of any object in the stands or onto the playing field is strictly prohibited. Those engaging in such conduct will be subject to immediate ejection. • Persons occupying a seat for which they are not ticketed will be subject to ejection from the ballpark.

Thanks to Philips, it's never been easier to pick up customers.

Philips, a global leader in floor care, has made some sweeping changes at Regina. They've invested millions to upgrade Regina's manufacturing facilities, technology and overall product quality. Now Regina's Uprights, Steamers and REGINA ElectrikBroom® Cleaners are built better than ever. And they're backed better, too. With new colors, graphics and packaging. In-store support. And a multimillion dollar ad campaign. It's all part of an ongoing commitment to make innovative floor care products that perform beautifully. Except when it comes to gathering dust.

Tune in Front Row, NESN's new sports magazine show, each Wednesday at 6pm for the Front Row MatheBATics Challenge. We'll answer the Contest Questions found here and test you with new MatheBATics brain twisters.

NESN's "FRONT ROW MATHEBATICS CHALLENGE"

COMPLETE OFFICIAL RULES

NO PURCHASE NECESSARY

Enter today for a chance to win :

One (1) Grand Prize: A pair of Front Row Luxury Suite Seats to the August 21 Red Sox game. And, before the game you'll be a special in-studio guest on Front Row!

Ten (10) First Prizes: A pair of 1996 Red Sox Grandstand tickets.

25 Second Prizes: A Front Row baseball cap.

Complete this entry form and mail to:

Front Row MatheBATics Challenge
PO Box 693
Kenmore Station
Boston, MA 02215

To be eligible, entries must be received by 5:00 pm on Monday, July 8, 1996.

1. How to play: Purchase a 1996 Red Sox Yearbook for questions, clues and contest entry form or send a self addressed stamped envelope to Front Row MatheBATics Challenge, P.O. Box 693, Kenmore Station, Boston, MA 02215, for a contest entry form. Tune-in to Front Row each Wednesday evening at 6 pm from May 1, 1996 to July 3, 1996 for contest answers. Each contestant is allowed one entry. A contestant mailing multiple entries will be disqualified.

2. Winners: A random drawing from all correct entries will be held 6/10/96, to identify the Grand Prize and runner-up winners. The Grand Prize winner will be notified by phone. All other winners will be notified by mail. Winners will be announced on Front Row on Wednesday, July 10, 1996.

3. Eligibility: The contest is open to residents of the Continental United States. Employees of NESN, the Red Sox, their immediate families, members of their household, as well as affiliates, subsidiaries, advertising, promotional and production agencies of these organizations, and anyone connected with the production of this sweepstakes are not eligible to enter or be awarded prizes.

4. Prizes are non-transferable or redeemable for cash or other consideration. No substitution for prizes. Failure to comply with all written conditions may cause forfeiture of the prize. Limit one prize per household. Prizes awarded to persons under the age of 18 will be contingent upon written approval from a parent or guardian. Grand Prize winner and their guest may be required to execute and return an Affidavit of Eligibility and Liability Release within 15 days of notification. Sweepstakes administration and prize verification will be supervised by New England Sports Network. By participating in this sweepstakes you agree to be bound by these official rules. If there is non-compliance, if the prize winners can not be notified by the means stated, or if the prize is returned as unclaimed or undeliverable, the prize will be forfeited and alternate winners will be chosen. All prize winners will be selected by a random drawing. Entrants release NESN, the Red Sox and their respective affiliates, parent companies, licensees, and agents, advertising and production agencies from all liability regarding participation in the sweepstakes and receipt and use of prizes awarded. Void where prohibited by law. All federal, state and local regulations apply. All materials submitted become the property of NESN and none will be returned. Entry constitutes permission to use the winners name and likeness for publicity without further consent or compensation.

5. Names of the prize winners can be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Front Row MatheBATics Challenge, P.O. Box 692, Kenmore Station, Boston, MA 02215.

Like to push things around? Have we got a suitcase for you.

Introducing the revolutionary new TransPorter™ from American Tourister®. It's the first suitcase you can push around without a fight. TransPorter's™ exclusive four-wheel design lets you push it in front of you with almost no effort—the wheels take the weight. Or pull it on two wheels if you choose. You can even stack on other bags and use it like a luggage cart. TransPorter™ is designed like a dresser, with built-in shelves to organize your belongings. Or collapse the shelves and pack it like a traditional suitcase. Inside, there's a suiter feature to help keep suits and dresses from wrinkling. When push comes to shove, you can't beat a TransPorter.™ For more information on how you can be this pushy, call 1-800-542-1300.

Shelves collapse on command.

Making travel less primitive.™

If you looked any more authentic, we'd have to ask for your autograph!

NEW ERA

STARTER

ATHLETIC

Because when you get this gear, you've got the same gear they wear on the field. The exact same. The same New Era cap, the same Russell jersey, and the same on-field Starter jacket. But, to get the exact same gear, you've got to get to the Clubhouse...then take your chances with the autograph seekers!

THE AYES HAD IT

The voice of the voters was heard last November as Mo Vaughn emerged from a strong field of candidates to become the eighth Red Sox player to capture the American League's Most Valuable Player Award. Here's a look at why those voters chose wisely as well as a peek at Sox MVPs through the years. ➡

ALL THOSE IN FAVOR SAY . . .

"Dear Member: It is up to the individual voter to decide who was the Most Valuable Player to his team."

In 1995, a majority of the voters for the American League Most Valuable Player Award — the most prestigious elected achievement in baseball save induction to the Hall of Fame — said "aye" in favor of Red Sox first baseman Mo Vaughn.

For knowledgeable baseball fans, the results were testimony that — before casting their ballots — members of the Baseball Writers Association of America had carefully read and considered some time-honored suggested guidelines.

The letter that accompanies the Most Valuable Player ballot notes "there is no clear-cut criteria of what Most Valuable means . . .", but it outlines several "rules of voting" which have been in effect since the MVP award was first given back in 1931.

Foxx became the first Red Sox player to win the Baseball Writers of America MVP Award as well as the first three-time MVP winner in either league (1932, 1933). His offensive statistics in 1938 were phenomenal: 50 home runs and 175 RBI (both club records) plus a robust .349 average to lead the league. In six seasons with the Red Sox, he averaged over 35 homers and nearly 140 rbi per season. He closed his career in 1945 as the greatest slugger since Babe Ruth with 534 career homers and a .325 lifetime batting average.

JIMMIE FOXX

These rules — both quantitative and qualitative in scope — derive from the BBWAA's basic position that players should be ranked according to who was most valuable "to his team".

Though "the MVP need not come from a pennant winner or other playoff qualifier", the fact that Vaughn led the Red Sox to the American League East Championship likely helped his cause. And certainly his "quantitative" free-swinging tenacity on the field — more than matched by his "qualitative" community spirit and altruism off the field — were attributes noticed by the BBWAA voters . . . as well as many others.

Venerable Sports Illustrated, in a season-ending cover feature, selected Vaughn for what it termed 'Mo Valuable' — significantly, not just for the American League but for all of baseball: "There are a handful of candidates worthy of being called baseball's Most Valuable Player this season but none can match the achievements of the 27-year-old Red Sox slugger."

While Sports Illustrated offered 'quantitative' on-field evidence, it also reported to the world what Boston-area fans have known for years: Mo works as hard on his community service as he does on his professional baseball career.

In recognition, the Baseball Assistance Team selected Mo as its winner of the Bart Giamatti Award — an honor that is symbolic of baseball's 'off-field' MVP: "Vaughn's dedication to reaching out to, and his sacrificing for, those less fortunate, especially youngsters, has marked him as someone very special. His choice for this honor was both popular and unanimous."

The MVP voting wasn't unanimous. Yet Mo received the most first place votes, the most seconds and was one of two players to be selected either first, second or third on all 28 ballots. Why the ayes? Look how Mo stacked up against the BBWAA's three 'Big Rules of Voting'.

MVP ♦ 1946 & 1949

TED WILLIAMS

In 1946 Williams returned from three years of Navy duty to lead the Red Sox to their first pennant in 28 years. While he batted .342 with 123 RBI and 38 home runs, none of the slugger's vital statistics, save for his 142 runs, led the league. On September 13 his one-and-only career inside-the-park home run in Cleveland decided the 1-0 pennant clincher. A severe elbow injury unfortunately hindered his World Series performance.

Once more in 1949, Williams was at or near the top of every important offensive category in the American League as he established individual season records for himself in runs (150) and rbi (159). He missed his third Triple Crown by losing the batting title by a margin of .0002.

The Splendid Splinter came close to capturing the MVP many other times as he finished second in the voting in 1941, 1942, 1947 (by one point!) and 1957 as well as a third place finish in 1948.

AYE . . . FOR 'THE NUMBERS'

MVP Big Rule of Voting #1: "Actual value of a player to his team, that is, strength of offense and defense."

"Strength of Offense"

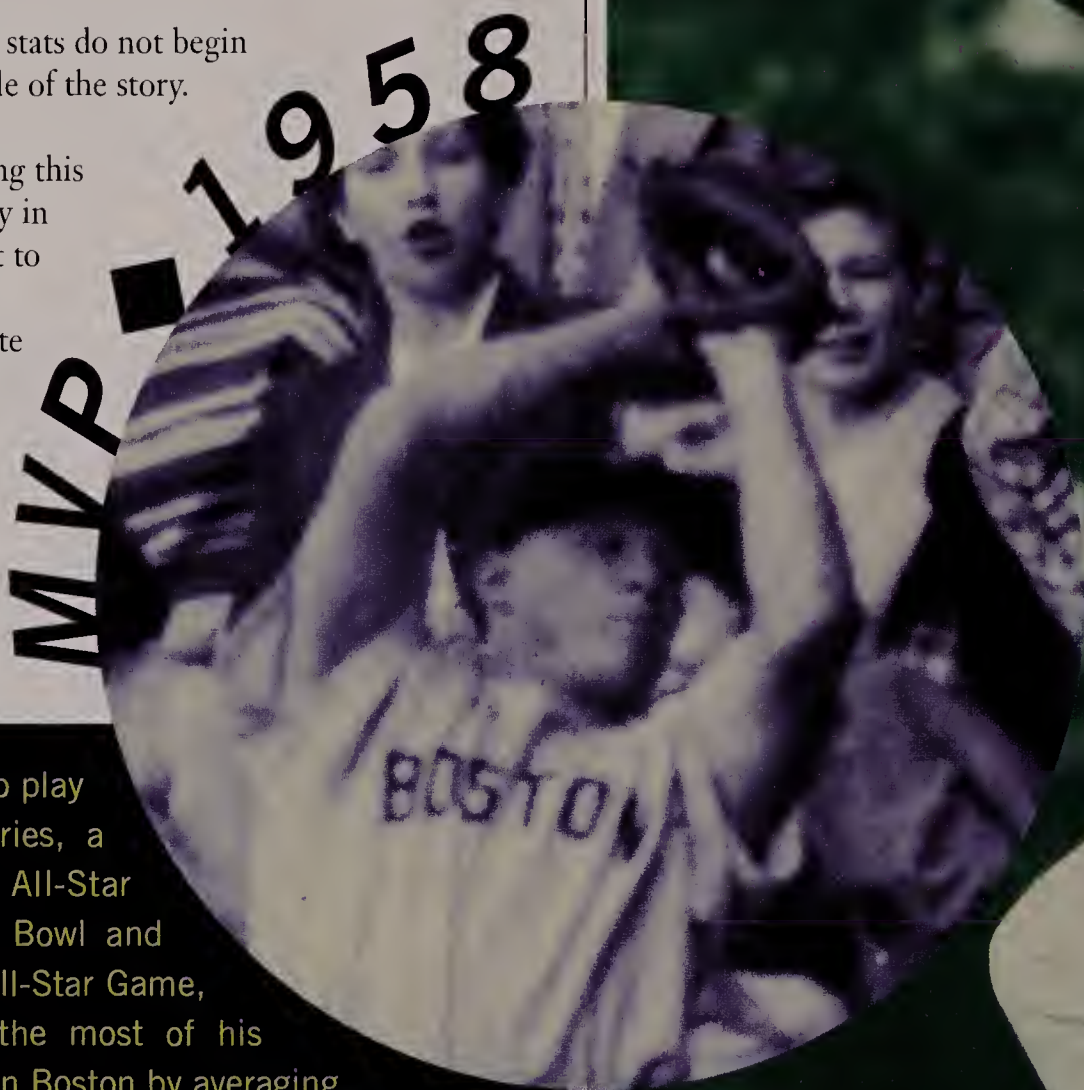

Mo finished the year tied for first in the league in rbi with 126, fourth in home runs with 39, fifth in total bases with 316 and sixth in slugging percentage at .575.

But those impressive stats do not begin to tell the 'clutch' side of the story.

"Mo has been carrying this team consistently, day in and day out, and that to me is what makes an MVP," Mo's teammate and 1988 AL MVP Jose Canseco told Sports Illustrated. "Every time this team needed him, he was there with a clutch hit or a clutch home run."

The only man to play in a World Series, a major league All-Star Game, a Rose Bowl and an East-West All-Star Game, Jensen made the most of his seven seasons in Boston by averaging nearly 115 rbi per season while leading the league three times in that category. The 1958 season would prove to be a milestone as he socked 35 home runs while driving in a league high 122 rbi. His heroics helped the Red Sox to a third place finish. At the height of his career Jensen retired twice — once in 1959 and again in 1961 — due to his fear of flying.

JACKIE JENSEN

Perhaps no player — before or since — has enjoyed as multi-dimensional an MVP season as Yastrzemski in 1967. His Triple Crown, the last captured in the majors, only tells part of the story. A .326 batting average, 121 rbi and 44 homers were achieved in the context of the greatest pennant race the American League has witnessed in modern times. Over the last 10 games he batted .541, including a seven-for-eight performance in the season's final two games. Yaz went on to bat .400 and drive in five runs in the seven game World Series.

Those clutch performances are punctuated by his hitting .600 (9 for 15) with 3 home runs, 2 doubles and 1 triple with the bases loaded. More importantly, he led his club with 41 two-out rbi and 32 game-tying and go-ahead rbi, while driving in 23 of 36 runners on third base with less than two outs (.639).

Overall, Mo batted .336 (50 for 148) with runners in scoring position [His average of .338 in this category over the last three years trails only that of Paul Molitor during this span in the American League.]

And he didn't load up at 'Friendly Fenway' — a misnomer for many a left-handed hitter. In fact, Mo's 74 road rbi led the majors, and his 24 road homers ranks second in Sox history to Ted Williams' 26 (1957).

His 39 total homers were also the most by a Sox player since Tony Armas' 43 (1984) and the three grand slams landed one shy of Babe Ruth's club mark (1919).

"Strength of Defense"

Mo doesn't protect his big offensive stats by sluffing off in the field. Although not generally credited for defensive prowess, he significantly lowered his errors-per-game ratio in 1995 and led the American League with 1262 putouts, 1368 total chances and 128 double plays.

AYE . . . FOR THE 'GAMER FACTOR'

MVP Big Rule of Voting #2: "Number of Games Played."

Vaughn was his team's most durable player, appearing in a team-high 140 games — starting 138 of them at first base. [Over the last 3 years, he has played in a rather 'Ripkenesque' 403 of a possible 421 games.]

Most importantly he excelled in games when it most counted. In a season that saw 1986 MVP Roger Clemens and Canseco (who hits behind Mo) miss 31 and 42 games respectively, Vaughn responded. During one Jose mid-season disabled list stint of 32 games, Vaughn smashed 8 home runs, batted .323 and drove in 24 runs.

Carrying the load with stats of .294, 26 homers and 75 rbi come August 1, it could be reasonably argued that Mo's 'value to his team' was by far the biggest reason the surprising Red Sox had built a 4.5 game divisional lead.

AYE . . . FOR THE 'GOOD GUY STUFF'

MVP Big Rule of Voting #3: "General character; disposition, loyalty and effort."

"General Character"

"Mo's an MVP in many ways," says Bryan Wilson, director of the Mo Vaughn Youth Development Program in Dorchester. "He comes here three times a week in the off-season and the kids always get pretty excited because he talks to them and asks them how they are doing in school or if he can help them in any way."

"He gets us tutors and helps us stay out of trouble," says 14-year-old Rayshawn Williams, "Not many players do this stuff — start a program and keep it going."

Says 14-year-old Patricia Nurse: "The name of this place is the Mo Vaughn Program — the MVP!"

It was also here — not some fancy hotel — that Mo held his MVP press conference: "The inner-city kids are special to me," he notes. "They should have something to do with winning this award."

Mo does a wide range of community service work during each baseball off-season, especially with youth groups in the Boston area. Who can forget the hundreds of kids that were his 'pied-piping' entourage to performances of the Boston Ballet's Nutcracker in December 1994 or his story reading session at the Dudley Street branch of the Boston Public Library last February.

Sports Illustrated's Callahan notes: "When he speaks to kids, Vaughn usually leaves the earrings in and the hat on backward, and he invariably makes a connection that most adults can only dream about. It is, he says, the secret to his appeal. He's not being a role model or a hero. He's just being Mo."

Like Babe Ruth a half century earlier, Vaughn has an empathy and understanding of kids and uses his power as an athlete and public figure to better their lives. Boston Globe columnist Dan Shaughnessy probably says it best when he comments that Mo is the greatest "kid magnet" in local sports history.

"Disposition"

Vaughn brings a positive winning attitude and a fun presence to the Red Sox clubhouse: "One of my jobs is to keep these guys together so we can do well as a team. That's part of being MVP, and I'll keep working hard at that for the rest of my career. When I came here, I wanted to win.

But also wanted to prove it could be fun to play here. I think I've done that."

So just what does Mo mean to the team? Says Red Sox shortstop and former college teammate John Valentin: "One word: 'Everything.'"

After an auspicious late season call-up in 1974 during which he batted .419 in 15 games, Lynn became the Sox starting center-fielder the following season.

He proceeded to hit .331 with 21 home runs and led the league with a .566 slugging percentage to help propel the team to its ninth pennant. His rookie season will forever be remembered for a Tiger Stadium game on June 18 in which the 23-year old hit three homers, a triple and a single, drove in 10 runs and scored four to rack up an astonishing 16 total bases. In perhaps the greatest World Series in history, Lynn batted .280 with a home run and 5 rbi and also excelled in the field.

FRED LYNN

“Loyalty”

Though Mo was but four-years old when Jackie Robinson died, he has always worn the number 42 in honor of the ground-breaking African-American baseball great.

This sense of loyalty, and kindred altruism, is rooted in the examples set by his parents, Shirley and Leroy Vaughn — still the major forces in his life. Among the many ‘good deeds’ in which the family was involved, Shirley was a volunteer in a program — led by Jackie’s widow Rachel — which brought inner city kids to the fresh air of Connecticut.

Mo also recognizes loyalty when it is bestowed upon him. Returning to the lineup at Fenway on July 16 two days after being roughed up trying to defend the honor of a companion in a Boston club, Mo was unsure how he would be received. A thunderous ovation delayed the game. “That was the highlight of my career,” he says with emotion. “I appreciated that.”

The true measure of loyalty in baseball is ultimately judged by one’s teammates. When Clemens — a ten-year vet who knows a thing about the topic — heard Mo’s MVP news, he danced in his living room with his family: “The whole team knows he deserved it. I just told Mo it’s something that’s very, very special. He’ll always be the MVP. He’s got something under his belt that nobody can ever take away from him.”

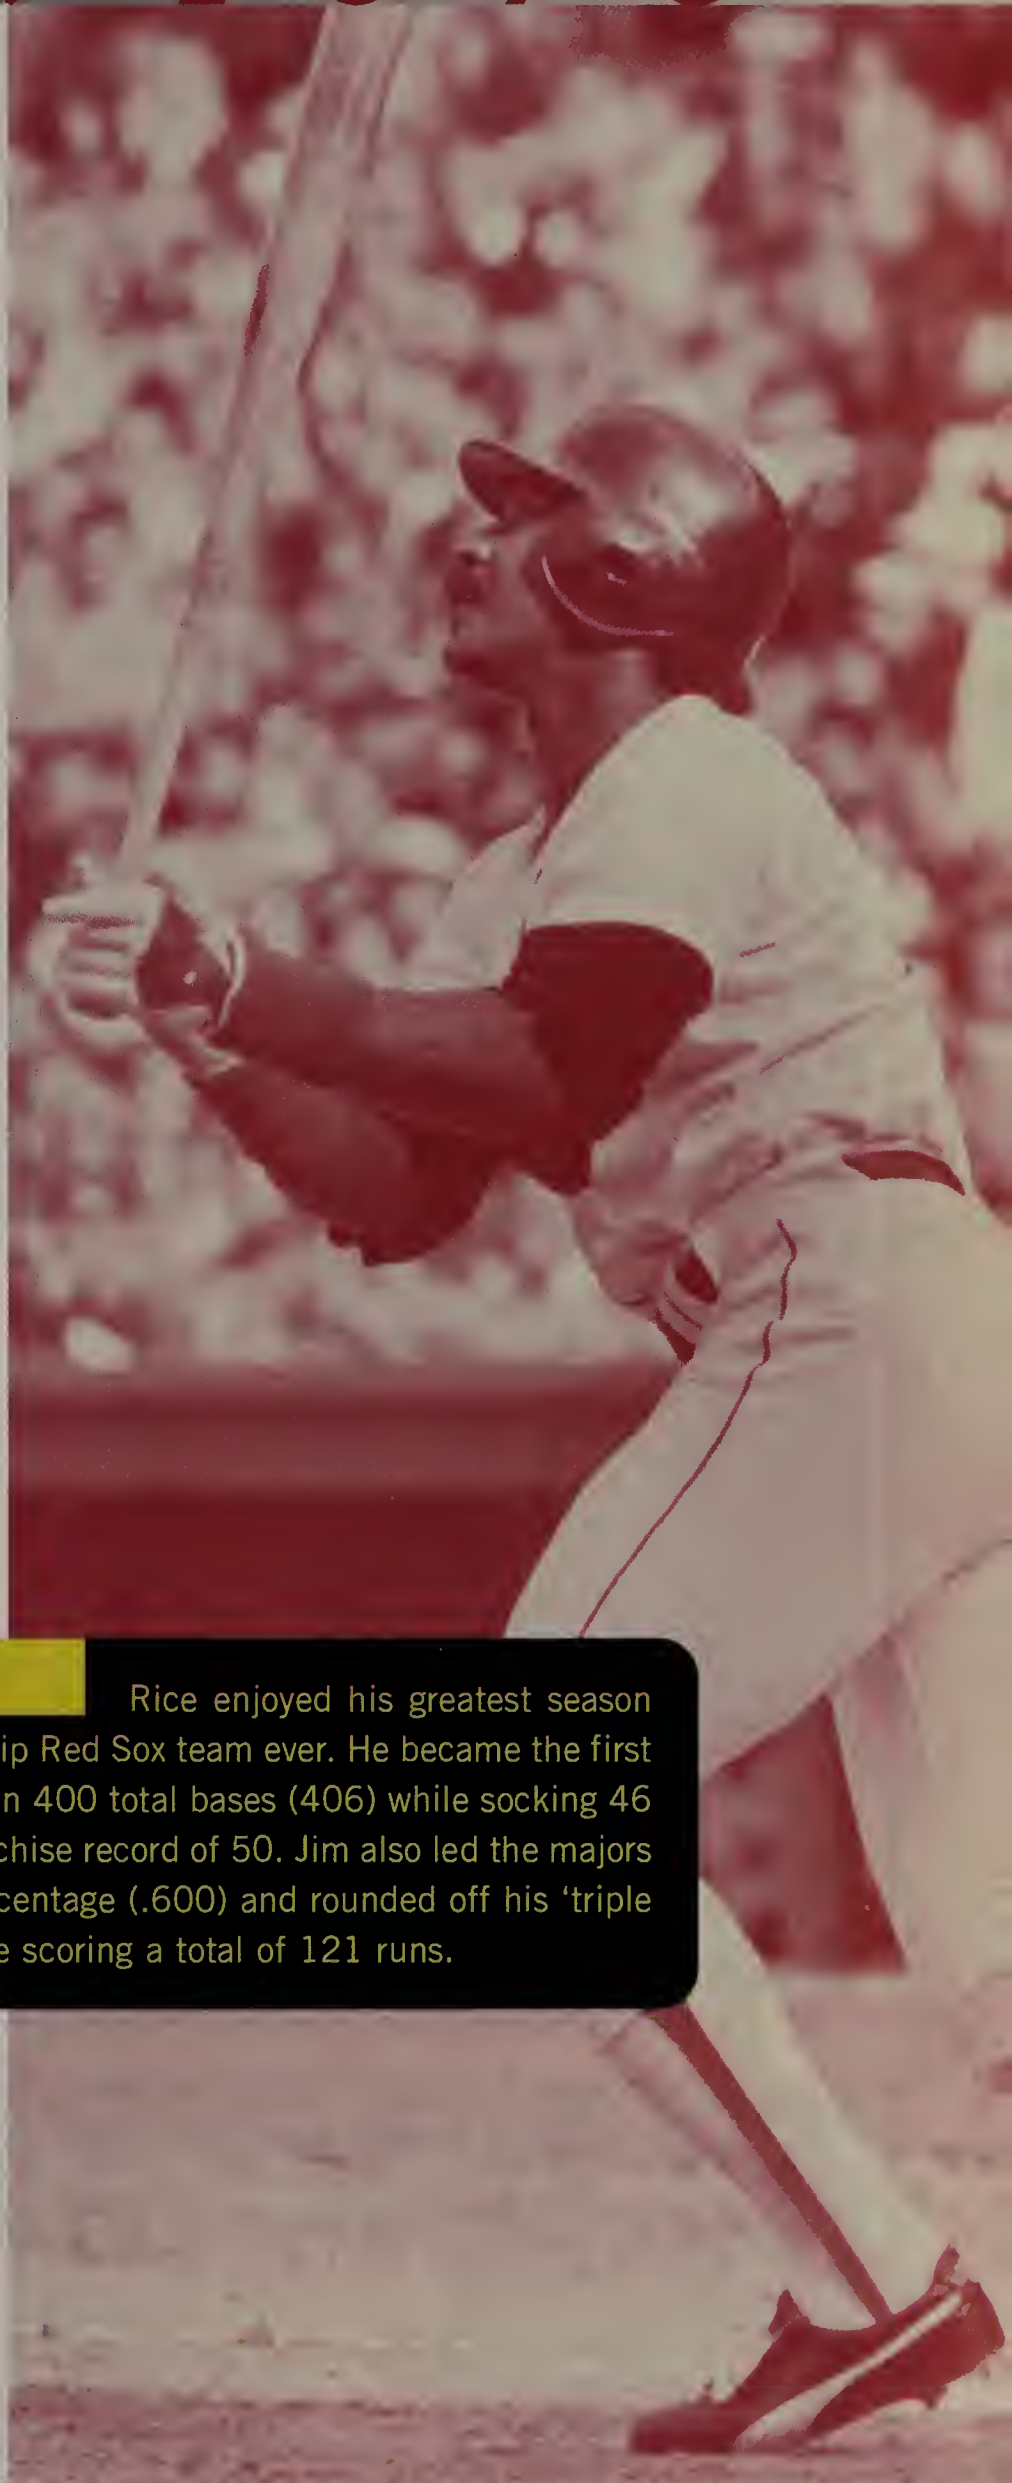

Vaughn’s tongue-in-cheek response this spring: “It’s home in my closet. And no one’s going to get it back.” Loyalty to self.

JIM RICE

Rice enjoyed his greatest season in 1978 leading perhaps the greatest non-championship Red Sox team ever. He became the first player since Joe DiMaggio in 1937 to collect more than 400 total bases (406) while socking 46 home runs — second only to Jimmie Foxx’s 1938 franchise record of 50. Jim also led the majors in hits (213), triples (15), rbi (139) and slugging percentage (.600) and rounded off his ‘triple crown-like’ numbers with a .315 batting average while scoring a total of 121 runs.

“Effort”

Despite the shortened 1995 campaign, Mo’s determination resulted in establishing career highs in home runs, rbi, hits and runs. More tellingly, the 6-1, 240 pounder — not known for his blazing speed — also set a competitive tone for his team early on by announcing he was going to be a factor on the base paths. So perhaps the MVP’s effort can be defined best by noting that he successfully stole his first eight bases (11 for the year) and legged out three triple; his two closest MVP rivals combined for a total of nine steals, one triple.

ROGER CLEMENS

Clemens credentials as a superstar were forged early in the 1986 season when, on the evening of April 29, he set a major league record by striking out 20 Seattle Mariners in a nine inning game. At the break he owned a 15-2 record with a 2.48 era. As winning pitcher he was presented the All-Star Game MVP Award in his Houston hometown, then returned to steer the Red Sox to the World Series. In true MVP form he captured 14 of his 24 wins following a team loss. Roger also was voted the AL's 1986 Cy Young Award.

AYE SAY . . . IS THAT ALL THERE IS?

As a primer here, return a page and re-read the 'Effort' section of this article.

"It's not like I'm going to go out and say, 'That's the best year I've ever had,' says the now 28-year old. It might look like that on the stat sheet. But in my mind, I had some flaws, though I'm not going to tell everybody what those are.

But I had some parts of my game that still had to come up. Man, you can never rest in this game. You can play as long as you want now, with expansion and all the different teams. So now, it's just a competition with yourself to go out and produce. And that's what I'm going to do."

"I'm a young guy. I'm still learning this game. Who knows what I can do if I put it all together? A complete year? I don't know what type of honors that brings. But I do know I can go out there and play the game the way it's supposed to be played. And if I do that, good things will happen."

"I'm not going to make a lot of brash changes," Mo claims. "And I'm not going to change my concepts or change my ideas about how I play the game. I'm going to do what made me an MVP. I just want to do it a little better, try to do more. It's a will to excel."

Rick Weber of the Fort Myers News Press perhaps analyzed Mo best when he caught up with him in Florida in early February: "All the hardware seemed to arrive in less than one week: the MVP, The Sporting News Silver Slugger, the Bart Giamatti from the Baseball Assistance Team for outstanding community service. But he didn't go on a nationwide tour of talk shows and banquets.

"He collected the hardware and then collected his thoughts. And it occurred to him that he wanted to use spring training not as a venue for conditioning, but as a monument for what he did between October 6 (when the Cleveland Indians KO'd the Red Sox in the AL play-offs) and February 20 (the spring training reporting date).

He didn't even have a contract, when he arrived in Fort Myers on February 1 along with a personal trainer. It was a time to reflect and a time to refocus. He ran on the packed sand at Fort Myers Beach. He made the Fitness Plus Gym his home.

"There's no time in the off-season to think negative thoughts, to think what I could have, should have, would have done. I've got some fine-tuning to do, and I have all this time to think about what I will do."

This type of over-and-above commitment to 'excel' was rewarded by the Red Sox when the club signed Vaughn on February 16 to a new contract — an $18.6 million spread over three years with a dual-option for 1999.

"It doesn't matter if I'm making one dollar or $25 million, I'm going to continue to go out there and compete. My first goal is to try to help my club get back into the playoffs and to do a better job in the playoffs to help us to win. We have a great team. We know we're going to win and that's all you can ask for, to be in that position.

"I'll be ready to go because my pride and the name on my bat mean more to me than anything."

All those in favor of an MVP Mo repeat say, "Aye aye, sir!"

The new
Saab 900
Turbo.
Finally, a

5-door you can really open up.

900 SE 5-door Turbo

Find your own road.™

The new Saab 900 SE 5-door Turbo is engineered to increase both your pulse and the distance between you and other cars. Including the Volvo 850GLT and the Audi A4*. Its 0 to 60 in under 7 seconds is pure exhilaration. And its five-door roomy interior, pure liberation. So any way you open it up, it's huge. No wonder it's a Consumer Review "Top 10 Sports Car."† For a free Saab Excursion Kit, call 1-800-582-SAAB, Ext.331. www.saabusa.com

Introducing
the Z-Trak™ Remote.
Only from Zenith.

Forget the confusing collection of hard-to-read buttons on your remote. Forget having to take your eyes off the screen or turn on the lights to find the right button.

Now, there's the new Zenith Z-Trak remote. A revolutionary advancement in the world of home entertainment. The only TV remote equipped with an innovative control ball that lets you access and operate every on-screen function faster and easier than ever.

Just point Z-Trak at the TV, spin the Trak ball until the cursor locates the desired on-screen menu, then click the ball down to activate. So much control in the palm of your hand.

The breakthrough Z-Trak remote only from Zenith. The inventors of TV remote control. And only available on Zenith Advanced Video Imaging™ sets with StarSight™.

Zenith. Offering the finest in realistic picture performance, theater-quality sound and now the viewing convenience of Z-Trak.

*The Quality Goes In
